FUNERAL SKIT by Josie Wert

CAST: Grandma, Grandpa, Uncle Joe, Aunt Bess, Mom, Dad, Kid, Hearse Driver

PROPS: Black Clothing for all, Small box, several small bouquets of flowers, tissues for the ladies.

[Entire Cast EXCEPT Hearse Driver onstage]

GRANDPA: When is that blasted coffin going to get here?!?

GRANDMA: Language, Bob, language! [shakes head sadly] And at a funeral, too!

MOM: Why don't we get started with the procession? After all, Millie is here in spirit.

AUNT BESS: What a great idea! I'm sure we all have words to say about our dear Millie.

GRANDPA: I think we should let Grandma start. After all, Millie loved Grandma the most.

GRANDMA: Oh, I have millions of things to say... how can I choose just one?

DAD: Just pick the first thing that comes to your mind.

GRANDMA: Well, first, Millie was always so cheerful, and always smiling.

[All the women start crying]

GRANDPA: Here, Marge, dab your eyes. [hands Grandma a tissue; entire cast dabs]

DAD: Let's give poor Grandma a minute and let someone else say a few words.

MOM: I have a few words! I loved Millie so much and nothing could ever replace her! I had only known her for a few years, but I feel like it was a lifetime!

KID: [sarcastically] That was beautiful.

MOM: It took me two hours to rehearse that. I'm glad you think so, sweetie.

KID: Oh, for the love of fish sticks! [rolls eyes, entire cast gasps dramatically]

AUNT BESS: How dare you!!!
